

Remembering Lot's Wife

I am just doing a graphic of Lot's Wife; because I am making DVDs and can't do much else at the same time; and suddenly the whole thing hit me very hard:

Would we not in our culture have excused her? would we not have sympathized and tried to comfort her—after all she was losing everything, including some of her children; maybe grandchildren? Wouldn't the 'nicey-nicey' people have had a field day with this poor woman? Fellowship parties; group counseling; gifts from secret pals; comfort calls?

She certainly thought that God would not blame her for just one longing look back at her past life considering all she was losing. BUT the angel said DON'T and she DID and she died--and she is lost too for eternity.

We often do things that we know we shouldn't—and we think—just this once—God is love—God is not so picky as that—God wants us to be happy—we can't be all stuffy and serious all the time; and so on. ONE of these days—it is going to be over for us if we continue like this—just as it was with her.

That is why Jesus commanded: "Remember Lot's Wife!" We better remember!
