

GOD'S SPECIAL DREAM: REJECTED

A Temcat study

"Saying, Did not we straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us."
Acts 5:28

What Could Have Been

After much study of the Spirit of Prophecy, denominational history and other history, one comes to see a picture that is truly amazing. This picture is what we could have had—it is what God handed to us in a basket as it were—but we didn't want it!

Millennia ago, the children of Israel made a similar choice. God had a plan for them. He wanted to bring them out of Egypt, teach them about Himself, give them the finest system of Government that any nation ever had, actually having God as supreme authority—a truly infallible leader! He planned to plant them as a shining light at the crossroads of the world in one of the finest areas, a country of milk and honey, and wait—while the people of the world gradually saw what God was all about and came marching in, begging to be taught and to become part of this miracle nation.

But when he marched them to the borders; lo and behold—they refused to go in! They had seen His power and His miracles—they had heard His promise that He was about to drive the heathen out of that land and they could just walk in and possess it. They would not even have to fight at that point. But they would not go in and instead began howling to high heaven that they were all about to be killed.

Forty years later, their children and two of the original bunch did go into the land. They were given very clear instructions; they were to have nothing to do with the heathen. They were not to make any agreements with them. They were not to learn their ways and they were not to have anything to do with their gods or religion. They were not to settle down in their ease until they had purged the entire area from all the heathen. God had promised He would be with them and nothing could stand up to them.

They went part way, they drove out enough heathen to have a place to live and then kept putting off finishing the job and going all the way with God. Then someone got a great idea! Instead of going to all the bother to drive out and destroy these nations, why not get them to pay money to Israel and then the people could get rich from disobeying God?

God's Special Dream: Rejected

God told them, 'Look, you are to be separate; you are to be entirely different; you are not even to resemble the heathen in any way. I have something far better for you.' He also warned, that if they did not listen, His plans to make them the head of the world would fall through and instead—they would end up the tail. He warned that if they compromised even a little—they would go on and on until they would be as wicked as the heathen, or worse!

You know the story—they were not in the land very long after having found a way to get rich by taxing the heathen instead of destroying them—before they decided that the heathen ways were pretty good after all and they wanted to do what the heathen did. So they did. Then came the day—an angel showed up and told them that because they had chosen to disobey God, He was withdrawing the special promise that He would help them drive out the heathen—from henceforth the heathen would be a torment to them forever! The special niche of time when they could have the Special Dream in its fullness—had passed away.

The people wept—they did not want the Dream when it was offered, but now they had lost it forever—they wept and brought offerings. Maybe they thought like the heathen that they could buy back the promise—but they couldn't. God is not a man, to be trifled with.

Quickly skimming through history we see them later deciding that they wanted to be even more like the heathen—they didn't want God to be the head and direct them—they wanted a human being, a king like the rest of the nations.

Then after many centuries of war, trouble, ups and downs—we see them gathered in the courtyard of an enemy palace. The very God they had rejected was standing there in the garb of humanity. They are so determined to get Him out of their way that they shout, "Let this man's blood be on us and our children! We have no king but Caesar!" Thus ended God's Special Dream for that nation.

In the 1800s, God called out a people. He had a Special Dream for them. He wanted to give them something so unique, so remarkable that no other people on earth would have anything like it. So he sent the needed information through the Spirit of Prophecy. I am going to describe as near as can be done what this Special Dream was to be. I will have to tell it as if it really happened.

Starting first with a few small buildings in a large tract of land in the country, Adventists established a most remarkable educational center. It was entirely self-supporting and was to train self-supporting missionaries, who would in turn go out into the world and start other small centers, also in country settings where they could raise all their own foodstuffs and have enough to sell and pay for what they could not raise or make themselves. These centers were never to go into debt; but rather were to grow only as fast as the means was in hand to be used. Small industries producing worthwhile products would help to support the centers and provide work experience for the students.

All available practical skills were taught and students were expected to learn a wide variety of occupations, by which they could find manual labor to support themselves in mission work anywhere in the world. Last but not least, they would all know the basics of agriculture, accounting, household management, physiology, and cooking etc. All these were taught in a setting of spiritual richness with the Bible truths the center and foundation of all other studies.

The usual classical studies and philosophies associated with the regular colleges and universities of the world were not found here. All that was taught had a practical purpose to it. The blessing of the Lord on these centers was almost palpable and there was a peaceful joyousness seldom encountered in the world these days. These schools turned out some of the best equipped people ever seen—able to turn their hands to almost any task needed. Like the missionaries from the island of Iona centuries before, they were a blessing and benefit wherever they would go.

Used to simple and almost austere living standards, with faith and hard work considered the greatest blessings, graduates could succeed in establishing missionary centers in areas where people used to the soft life would never venture.

Each main educational center had a unique health institution called a 'Sanitarium', where a special form of medicine was taught and practiced called 'sanitary' or 'Hygienic Medicine.' This system was drug free, and used water and the simplest means to treat and heal the sick. It also taught the patients how they could treat themselves in their own homes for many if not most ailments. It also emphasized the Laws of Health, which included proper diet, fresh air, exercise and sunshine and other blessings and just how to use them to promote well being and heal illness. No costly equipment was required and the system could be adapted for all areas of the world.

Students were all taught the unique methods by experienced instructors and they put into practice what they were learning at the small sanitariums found near each educational center. By the time they would leave the centers, they had enough knowledge and practical experience to be able to set up their own treatment rooms, sanitariums or schools elsewhere.

Patients flocked to these centers, because finally they had discovered a source of help that was not only simple and reasonable in cost, but really gave results! It was like nothing ever seen on earth before! Using water treatments, massage, a few of the simplest remedies such as powdered charcoal and common garden herbs, along with a vegetarian diet, people went home cured—even many that came in having been told they were hopeless by the regular doctors.

Early in the new 20th century; when the huge chemical barons set up organizations to try and bring all medicine under their system of allopathic drug use and surgery, the Hygienic system had been able to obtain a special charter as a unique form of therapy. And so, along side of Osteopaths and Chiropractors, they have the ability to train, license and self-govern their own training schools and Sanitariums, and grant the title of Dr. of Hygienic Medicine, Hygienic Medical assistant, and Hygienic Nurse.

This was not particularly difficult because the dramatic success of these methods and the low cost and self-supporting nature of the centers, made them very desirable for any government to have them in their midst.

All over the world the name Seventh-day Adventist was associated with these helpful centers where the afflicted could find help for their problems. Even most churches operated small treatment rooms to serve the community and teach nutrition, home health care and God's laws of health to all who were interested. Thousands with more severe problems would spend some time at the country sanitariums with very good results.

The missionary character of these people and the advanced practical nature of their education, result in few of them having any problem to obtain employment. Most are involved in their own self-supporting health or educational centers. Wherever they go into foreign lands these resourceful people are welcomed for the special skills for which they are world famous.

Although Allopathic medicine under the auspices of the AMA has done its best to encourage the use of drugs and surgery as the only sensible way to treat sickness—still many people opt out for the friendly atmosphere, reasonable cost, and simplicity of the Adventist Hygienic System. The very high level of success the Sanitariums have in treating, even cases declared hopeless by the Regular system, has Allopathic doctors and surgeons shaking their heads in amazement.

The willingness of these people to be of service to their fellow man and to teach their unique form of health care to all who wish to learn, has made them much respected—even though some feel their religious standings are rather strange. The way they truly practice what they claim to believe in, has won many to their faith and the Adventists have churches and health-educational centers in most countries today.

Although they have no very large or showy centers and have a surprising simple system of organization with local directors free to make almost all decisions, their overall impact on the world cannot be measured. When asked how they ever learned their incredible systems of Health and Education, they are quick to respond, "It was a gift from the Lord, through His special messenger for these last days! God has richly blessed us because we have followed His guidance."

Because they are entirely self-supporting and neither receive any moneys from government nor ask for any for either their schools or health centers, Adventists have an independence from government interference that is the envy of many larger organizations.

Debt is almost entirely unheard of among them—either privately or institutionally and although they are not rich people, rather content to keep to themselves, live plainly, and serve wherever needed, their country life-styles afford a high quality of life. Because they also practice what they teach about health, the common diseases that plague mankind are almost unknown among them.

Anyone investigating the amazing simplicity and wisdom of the Adventist system has to admit, "Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people." Deuteronomy 4:6.

In ancient Israel the rejection of God's Special Dream resulted in much suffering and oppression. Thinking they knew a better way than God by trying to get rich by disobedience, they ended up grievously oppressed by the very heathen nations they admired and wanted to be like.

The oppression and burdens pressed upon them and the yoke was galling and heavy. How much loss and suffering resulted—only the omnipotent God of Heaven can calculate! Finally at the end, the special knowledge God had given them was almost unknown and people thought that what they saw before them—was what God had wanted for them.

Even the disciples came to Jesus to point out the wonders of the Roman subsidized and controlled temple and religious structure. Solemnly He told them, "Not one stone will be left upon another!" So sure they were that all was well, they had no concept of how soon this would actually happen.

How much suffering and distress has been caused by Adventists rejecting God's Special Dream only the omnipotent God of Heaven can calculate! Now among us only a few know what was meant to be—the bits of special knowledge that have survived are so mixed with so called worldly 'wisdom'—that it bears no semblance to the unique system we were to practice. Our people think our hospitals and doctors are 'special'—but they are mirror images of the world and dare be nothing else or they will lose their license.

Our worldly imitating schools and hospitals are chained to associates, linked to other denominations, controlled by worldly mixed boards, harnessed by government demands, staffed by many non-Adventists, threatened by unions, and smothered by an incredible load of debt—that well may drag the whole church down with it someday soon.

Struggling to meet demands of worldly accreditation boards, our systems are not thousands in debt, not millions, but billions in debt. And why should they cumber the ground? They are not in the tiniest sense fulfilling what God really gave us to do any more than the Greek and Roman corrupted Sanhedrin was God's plan for Israel!

Jesus made an interesting and solemn statement; "Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, after they heard this saying? But he answered and said, Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up. Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch." Matthew 15:12-14.

When our leaders decided that they would have the 'best the world could offer' instead of God's Special Dream, they chose slavery, suffering and oppression instead of beauty and freedom that God was offering them. Why? We may well ask. For one thing, they were sure they knew better than God. Most still think so as they try and convince you that this monster that has been sucking the means meant to evangelize the world is actually what God intended. We should not add sin to sin, by claiming we have followed the Dream and what is there today is what the Lord wanted us to have—It just is not so!

God was giving them something unique, which would have made them the envy of the world. Potentates would have beaten a path to our doors and we would have been a wonder on the face of the earth. But there was something it would not have given; it would not have given the massive incomes, the worldly degrees, the haughty pride of status, and the kingly rule over the little guy. It would not have satisfied the proud, disobedient heart of the unconverted among us. But they could have left and sought what they wanted out in the world and the truehearted would have been freed of their blighting company.

God's simple, natural way of treatment is life and health to all who find it. The world's method of drugs and surgeries, which has now been imposed on all people because of the incredible power of the chemical barons, is cruel! People, who are victims of disease brought about by the breaking of the laws of health, suffer wretchedly and die—when God's special methods could have restored them to health and their voices instead of expressing curses and groans of misery would have been lifted in praise to our great and merciful Saviour!

Health cannot be restored by poisoning our bodies with drugs. Health cannot be purchased in a bottle. Health is found by drawing near to the Life-giver, learning His ways, obeying in His strength His Laws, whether moral or physical.

This is the fact that seems almost unknown among men today; the fact that the system of medicine the world uses now—and is often forced on us—is not there because it has been proven best and most effective! Oh no! It is there because the money and power of the chemical barons was behind the accreditation boards, the Carnegie foundation, and the AMA, and they were used to force natural healers out of business and impose themselves in their place.

Many perfectly practical colleges of natural healing went down because they could not or would not comply with the demand to promote and develop chemical medicine. The survivors were not there because they were best; but because they would make the most profit for the chemical barons.

Look at it this way—if I have five dogs and I feed two of them and beat and starve the rest, after a while only the two will survive—but that does not mean they are the best dogs. It does not mean that the dead dogs were not just as worthy.

No group that refused to promote drug medicine and do massive research to develop it, was going to be allowed to exist. But there was a window of opportunity and God opened it and tried everything short of force to get us to go through it. We could have made our own rules! The AMA would never have got its hooks into us! Some groups seized the opportunity and went through, but not us. We chose to spend the time following the AMA around, begging to be allowed in. Even they could not understand it!

God's Special Dream: Rejected

The time passed, the monster grew in power; the chains were fastened in place and the Dream faded away. No angel came to announce it was too late, but once when a group of our leaders, in trouble from going contrary to what God had directed, went to consult with the prophet—she solemnly left the room in silence—and closed the door behind her.

The oppressive power of the drug industry and corruption that goes with it grows daily. God's Dream would have given the people of the world an alternative whereby they could escape into a haven of rest from the misery of this dying planet. The chemical barons could not have fastened their chains as tightly upon the masses if we would have been there, showing the people a way out! Oh, there would always be plenty who would choose the fancy chemical medicine, because there are many that will not accept any restrictions on their indulgences; but it was not our business to ever supply it to them!

The Special Dream can never be what it could have been; but individually, those who are willing to turn to the Lord and follow His ways with an undivided heart and no compromise can still see His blessing in their lives. If they will reach out to learn His ways and use them to serve others—He will bless their efforts with success.

God does not change—he told us we were not to teach and practice drug medicine. He meant what He said. Friends don't you see? He told us that because it is inferior to what he gave us! He did not want to take a good thing from us and force us into second-rate status just to be arbitrary. He was giving us the very best—and it is still the very best!

It is not easy today to learn the Special Dream as it long ago ceased to be taught among us in any purity and much knowledge and skill has been lost. The early programs in our medical school were all forced out decades ago by the accreditation boards. But information is available. For example—Harvestime Books sells a Natural Health Encyclopedia, and a Medical Missionary Manual, and Leaves of Autumn reprints valuable textbooks. Those who truly chose to redeem the past will be helped and guided by the Holy Spirit. God is waiting for us to do His will using only His methods.

“Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein. Also I set watchmen over you, saying, Hearken to the sound of the trumpet. But they said, We will not hearken.”
Jeremiah 6:16,17
